

I believe any broadcaster, no matter what media of transmission method they use, be it terrestrial, satellite or internet bound, should have the right to broadcast anything they want to according to the full extent of the 1:st amendment of the US constitution. I want to see no limitations in the type of, or content of programming of any broadcaster.

That means no limits in local/national content.

No limitation to "political correctness" or type of language, be it rude crude and dirty or educated and clean, every voice should be allowed to be heard.

Only the broadcaster him/her-self should be the judge of what they want to offer and noone, not the FCC or the NAB or any other organisation governmental or other should have any say in this, unless a law is broken.
